

The finish line

Interested in motorsports? Here's a documentary web series on Indian racers and how motorsports evolved in India. Titled Breaking the Barriers, it hopes to take viewers on a journey from an era gone by to the current times in chronological order and hopes to inspire the younger generation. The makers now intend to do limited theatrical releases, based on demand. The theatrical version, which will be of two-and-half hours duration, will have limited releases in Chennai, Bengaluru, Coimbatore, Hyderabad and New Delhi. "Today, when we talk to motorsports enthusiasts in India, they speak about Lewis Hamilton and Max Verstappen. Their awareness of Indian racers pales in comparison. This docu-series is an attempt to connect Indians to our unsung heroes and showcase them in a global arena," added Sujith, who is also the father of motor-racing champion Yash Aradhya.
